Death Camp Deputy Is in Austria

VIENNA (AP) — Erich Rajakovic, Adolf Eichmann's Nazi death camp deputy in the Netherlands, has evaded a police dragnet in Yugoslavia and is now in Austria, his lawyer said today.

The attorney, Dr. Karl Boeck, said the former SS (Elite Guard) captain wanted by Dutch authorities for his role in the deportation of thousands of Jews to concentration camps, fled from a tourist resort on the Adriatic coast Monday night.

Rajakovic crossed the border into neighboring Austria where he is safe from extradition because of his conviction in Vienna on some of the war crimes charges the Netherlands wants to bring against him, Boeck said. The Dutch Foreign Ministry asked Yugoslavia to turn over Rajakovic after reports of his arrest reached Amsterdam Monday.

Rajakovic was said to be further protected by an Austrian law against extradition of Austrian citizens.

Sources in Vienna had said that Rajakovic was arrested while vacationing in the resort town of Pirano, but local police denied the report.

Rajakovic, 61, was free after serving seven months of a 2½-year jail term in Vienna for "violent deeds" in connection with the deportation from France and subsequent murder at Auschwitz of 82 Dutch Jews. He was released from prison early because pretrial confinement was counted as part of his term.

Rajakovic was running an export-import business in Milan, Italy in 1963 when he was arrested after an investigation by Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna. Wiesenthal assisted in the capture of Eichmann, who was tried and hung in Israel in 1962.

The Netherlands Institute for War Documentation recently claimed it had further proof of Rajakovic's guilt in the 1941-42 Dutch phase of the Nazis' "final solution" to the Jewish question.

At yesterday's regular Lions Club meet Arthur Wimmell introduced Arkansas nominee for Lions International Director, Clint Huey, of Warren, who is seeking election as International Director.

teens," he recalled, "I used to have to play a new part every week on the stage in Chicago. They ranged in age from 18 to 70. I took pleasure in going to the theater early and spending hours making myself up to look gray and haggard."

One of the most active and experienced performers in the entertainment field, Douglas has appeared in some 70 films, 150 stage roles, and numerous television plays. Among his theater hits were "A Free Soul," "Tonight or Never," "Inherit the Wind," "Waltz of the Toreadors," and "Time Out for Ginger."

And many an aging matron's heart still thrills at the memory of his romantic charm in such films as "Theodora Goes Wild," "The Gorgeous Hussy," "As You Desire Me," and "Ninotchka."

Throughout his career Douglas has taken an active part in politics and liberal causes, starting at a time when few Hollywood stars did so. He is married to Helen Cahagan, a former actress who served three terms in Congress as a Democratic representative from California.

Douglas also served as a private in World War I, and in World War II, after enlisting at the age of 42, he rose from private to major.

"Looking back," he said, "I feel I might have been happy in the fields of sociology and psychological therapy, if I hadn't loved acting so much."

"The most important thing, I believe, is to fulfill your own potentialities—without hurting others, if possible."

"You must involve yourself in your own time. I never let my work hamstring me. I have always liked to do things that are interesting and provocative."

"Fear, insecurity and illness—these are the things that defeat most people. But there is no simple prescription for whelping fear. You must find that within."

"If I can live the rest of my life some kind of health—and with joie de vivre—I'll be as happy as any person can be."

Sale to Minors a Problem

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Alvin E. Bell, director of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control agency, said Monday that the problem of the sale of intoxicants to minors is not unique to Arkansas.

"The communities which fail to provide young people with outlets for their energy, the parents who fail in their responsibilities, all contribute to the problem," Bell said.

He said he "officially and personally" opposes the sale of intoxicants to minors.

Bell said that when the evidence was sufficient he suspended a permit on the first violation and acted to revoke the license on a subsequent charge and proof. He said he had to base his actions on evidence that would stand up in court and that situation added to the difficulty of policing the industry.

light, Mr. Huey told about a trip to the South Pole with Admiral Byrd where temperatures were 43 degrees below zero in middle of the summer.

Plans for the annual bulb sale were discussed. This money goes to help sight conservation locally and to help support the blind rehabilitation center at Little Rock which is wholly supported by Arkansas Lions.

Guests were Travis Ward, Hope, C. G. Johnson, Prescott and J. T. Mew of Warren.

cane thrusted ashore. Gales and three-to-five-foot tides were predicted elsewhere along the Mexican coast below Brownsville.

Gales extended from the center outward 125 miles to the north and 75 miles to the south. Only two weeks ago Hurricane Beulah smashed ashore close to Brownsville at the south tip of Texas, and Matamoros, across the Rio Grande in Mexico. Beulah killed at least 55 persons, including 12 in Texas, and inflicted losses topping $1 billion after hitting the Gulf Coast.

Flooding compounded Beulah's destruction over 40,000 square miles of South Texas, and not until Sunday did the Rio Grande's massive crest finally reach the sea.

Officials feared even a near miss by Fern down the Mexican coast from Texas would set off reseeded floods, again routing some householders allowed to go back to their homes the past weekend.

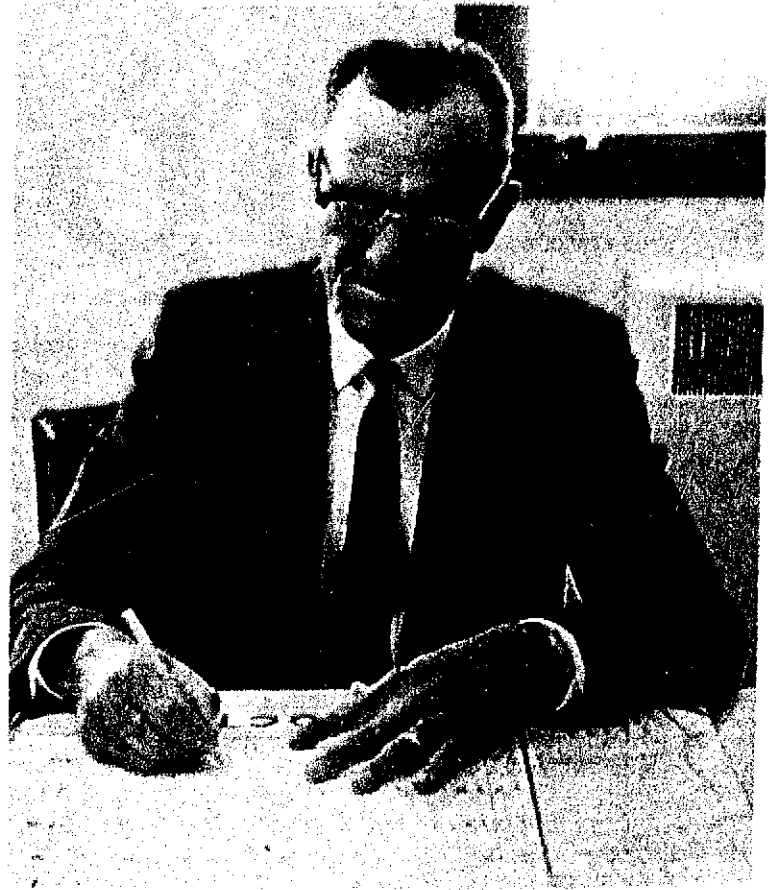

At 2 a.m. the Weather Bureau placed the center of Hurricane Fern near Latitude 22.8 North and Longitude 94.4 West, or about 230 miles east of Tampico and 265 miles southeast of Brownsville.

Storm forecasters expected the forward movement to continue toward the west northwest about 8 miles per hour, with Fern crossing the northeast Mexico coast tonight.

Top winds of the latest hurricane were estimated at 85 m.p.h. near the center and gales extended 125 miles to the north and 75 miles to the south.

Fern's force, still modest for a hurricane, compared with maximum winds of 160 m.p.h. at the point Beulah bashed ashore, sweeping away some buildings and crushing others in an area just upcoast from Brownsville.

Times Drops Afternoon Newspaper

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The New York Times, says the Times has decided not to publish an afternoon newspaper in New York City.

He made the announcement to the staff Monday.

A spokesman for the Daily News said it is continuing its study of whether to publish an afternoon newspaper. He said "no decision has been reached."

Time Inc. also has been considering the possibility of entering the afternoon newspaper field. Board chairman Andrew Hellsell said Monday that it is a long-time study that might take two years before anything materializes.

The New York Post has been the only citywide afternoon newspaper of general circulation since the World Journal Tribune ceased publication May 5.

Sulzberger said in his announcement that studies since May 5 have indicated that an afternoon venture by the Times would require diverting "major talent and time" from the morning newspaper operation.

"We were determined from the start," he told the staff, "that we would take no step that threatened to diminish the quality or slow the progress of The New York Times itself."

South could have made his contract by a different line of play. At trick two he could have led a club to dummy's ace and continued with a low heart to his own nine. This might have been successful, but the actual play would have worked against most West holdings.

East's Queen Locates Jack

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The standard play from equals, when you are attempting to force declarer or dummy to play a high card, is your lowest. This gives your partner his best chance to gain information about declarer's hand.

North would have been better advised to go right to four hearts after South gave him an immediate raise. North could be pretty sure that his partner did not hold four spades and that spades would be opened at no-trump.

Sure enough, West opened the five of spades and East's queen knocked out South's ace. This queen play told West that South held the jack of spades also. If East held the jack he would have played it instead of the queen.

West also knew that desperate measures would be necessary to defeat the contract and West took them. He dropped the king of hearts when South played the ace of hearts at trick two. West would have looked foolish if South had continued with the jack but the result would have

But all is not humor around them. They are very serious about their comedy and about making a comment. The mention of their name brings shudders to the network censors.

"The censors are on our rear constantly," Tommy said. "Now we put things in deliberately so we can trade. If something gets a laugh during rehearsal, the two continuity guys look at each other searching for hidden meanings. Once we had a line about '17,000 senior citizens rowing to Galveston.' Saul Hlson our co-producer, said, 'You're not going to let that get by, are you?' and they became convinced there was some hidden meaning in the phrase 'rowing to Galveston.' But you know, they have helped us. They are cutting our stuff, so they are making us say the same things more subtly."

"We feel strongly about our material," Dick said. "The people hold us responsible for what we say, not the network. If we do a lot that is in bad taste, the people aren't going to watch us. Censors are square."

"We've been told our function is to entertain," Tommy added. "But we reflect the society in which we live. But the network doesn't want you to sermonize. There is such an establishment of bureaucracy. The fear of failure is prevalent, but there is no fear of mediocrity. That's not failure."

Because of the success of their show, in the previously deadly spot opposite Bonanza, the boys are not having any trouble lining up guests.

"But for the first few weeks last season, we were scrambling for guests," Dick said. "CBS got them for us. They made stars of their shows come on with us. You can't blame performers for waiting. Who would want to be on a variety show opposite Bonanza that came on in mid-season with the Smothers Brothers who failed with their first series?"

Dick smiled. "It's fun to be a success. We were embarrassed by the other show. We figured we were sure to have viewers for this series, if it was a good one, because they watched us in a bad one. And that's the highest compliment. In retrospect, that other series was a good move. The audience watched us and didn't know we were better. Now they do."

Success has opened them up. Formerly they were very quiet, shy and performed with an unsure quality. They are no longer quiet or shy. Tommy pinpoints the change. "I'm weirder than I used to be. People say I'll make it now as a comedian. Yeah, I'm weirder. Dickie has become an extrovert. I used to be one."

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — After the film "Hawaii" was shown, the operator of the Center Theater, Bennie Harden, was arrested, charged under a city ordinance that prohibits the showing of women in topless attire on movie screens.

Harden was released without bond pending a trial in City Court Oct. 9.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bettel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT! This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! in this newspaper.

IS HE WORTH WAITING FOR? Dear Helen: Straight and simple: I've been going with a boy for nearly two years. We're both 19. We were going to be married this summer but he called it off because we were both freshmen in college and finances would be too rough.

Since then, I've quit college and started work. He shouldn't have any excuses now as my paycheck plus his parents' college money will meet our needs. Well, we were going to get engaged this August, but somehow it fell through. Now he says, "Plan on a wedding next summer." Whose wedding?

Helen, should I stop wasting my life and go back to college? I'm tired of feeling like a beggar. — T.W.

Dear T: It's your choice; and I think your choice has already been made. Otherwise you wouldn't be writing to me for approval.

May your college education teach you, among other things, that being young and single is better than being married to a reluctant bridegroom. — H

Dear Helen: I can't take it any more. One minute my mother is running me up the wall. The next minute my father is stomping me into the ground. They used to love me, but now they hate me. How can people change so much in just one year? — REJECTED

Dear Rejected: Your parents haven't changed—and that's their big trouble. They still think of you as a child who must be told what to do, while you think of yourself as a young adult who can make her own decisions.

Each side is half right, and the sooner you recognize you still need their guidance, the faster they'll give you the privileges you deserve. — H

Dear Helen: There is this boy who is always calling me on the phone. He calls a dozen times a day and I am getting fed up. I've tried to imply I don't like it but he won't take the hint. What can I do? — POLITE

Dear Polite: Have your father answer the phone. He won't be troubled by "politeness." — H

Dear Helen: I'm a girl of 15. I've got a brother aged 20. And this is not a letter of complaint. Our parents are the greatest. They treat our friends as part of the family, tease at the right times, join in our discussions, but don't intrude. They give us their opinions after they hear what we have to say.

We have lots of fun together. My friends are just shocked when they hear us goof around. They can't believe that even my brother and I get along.

I don't see why this is so hard to do, with just a little consideration on all sides. We even go swimming, shopping and to movies together, though, of course, my brother and I go off with our other friends too. We laugh and joke a lot, but when it's time to settle down to seriousness, you've never seen a more serious bunch.

I'm proud of my parents and not afraid to say so. Same goes for my big brother. And they're all proud of me. I'm so grateful that God put me in this family and I wish everyone were so lucky. — BECKY

Dear Becky: Thanks for brightening my day!

I wish that everyone who feels as you do would sit down right now and write a letter saying so. Then mail it—not to me but to his or her parents. Try it, kids, and let me know the results. I'll bet they'll amaze you! — H

Little Rock Hall Takes Poll Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Little Rock Hall, which boasts both a potent offense and stout defense, has taken over the top spot in the Associated Press Arkansas High School Football Poll.

The Warriors started the year among the top five teams and advanced to the No. 2 spot last week after knocking off North Little Rock.

Fort Smith Northside which has been on top of the poll twice, including last week, fell to the No. 2 spot despite defeating previously unbeaten Springdale 14-7.

Hall got nine first place votes and Northside four. The Warriors wound up with 133 points to the Grizzlies' 130.

Hall has scored 119 points in four victories, an average of almost 30 points per game. The Warriors' defense has given up only one touchdown—that to Little Rock Catholic in the season opener.

Texarkana, Little Rock Central and North Little Rock, all victorious last week, remained third, fourth and fifth respectively. Pine Bluff, which beat Little Rock McClellan 20-0, moved past Springdale into sixth place. Springdale dropped to seventh.

Conway, winner of five straight, remained in eighth. Fort Smith Southside which defeated Marshall, Tex., last week moved back into the select group. Little Rock Catholic, now 3-2 after losing to Hall and Central, grabbed the No. 10 spot. Forrest City, No. 9 last week was tied by Helena, and Fayetteville, No. 10 last week, was beaten by Texarkana.

Conway remained on top in Class AA followed by Catholic and unbeaten Sheridan. Fordyce clung to the top spot in Class A despite being tied by Hamburg; Hamburg finished second, one point back, followed by Brinkley.

Southern Cal Rated the Best

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California became the new tenant in the room at the top of The Associated Press college football poll this week, replacing Notre Dame, whose lease suddenly ran out.

The Trojans, who added an impressive 21-17 victory over Michigan State last Saturday to one over Texas the week before, moved from second to first as the Irish, upset 28-21 by Purdue Saturday, fell from first to sixth.

Southern California picked up 20 first-place votes from the writers and broadcasters who voted and gathered a total of 428 points, counted on the basis of 10 for a first-place vote, nine for a second etc.

Houston, which clobbered Wake Forest 50-6 Saturday, advanced from third to second place, 39 points behind Southern California. The Cougars were named first on 10 of the 46 ballots, but appear to have been hurt in the voting by the three-year probation imposed by the NCAA in 1966 for recruiting violations.

One Texas voter didn't list Houston anywhere on his ballot because of the probation, which prohibits the club from appearing in a televised game or in a postseason bowl.

UCLA, with six first-place votes, climbed from fourth place to third, 21 points behind Houston. The Bruins crushed Washington State 51-23 Saturday.

Purdue gathered nine first-place votes and jumped from 10th place to fourth on the strength of its triumph over Notre Dame. The Boilermakers are only 14 points behind UCLA.

Georgia, which beat Clemson 24-17, remained in fifth place and was named No. 1 on one ballot. Following Notre Dame is seventh-place Nebraska, which beat Minnesota 7-0 Saturday.

Colorado, idle Saturday, fell from sixth place to eighth and Alabama remained in ninth place after beating Southern Mississippi 25-3.

The only new team in the poll is Texas Tech, which replaced Texas by beating the Longhorns 19-13. Texas was eighth last week.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-etc. basis:

- 1. Southern Cal (20) 428
- 2. Houston (10) 389
- 3. UCLA (6) 368
- 4. Purdue (5) 354
- 5. Georgia (1) 293
- 6. Notre Dame 165
- 7. Nebraska 141
- 8. Colorado 114
- 9. Alabama 73
- 10. Texas Tech 47

Off the subject of football, a few remarks anyway are due the American League pennant race, which the Boston Red Sox took on the final day. The Sox came from behind in the seventh inning to slash the Minnesota Twins 5-3. Carl Yastrzemski, Boston's peerless leftfielder, made the play of the game in the eighth inning, throwing out the Twins' Bob Allison, who was trying to stretch a one run single into a double, as Tony Oliva watched from third base. Jim Lonborg spun a five-hitter on the last day of the season, in a game which determined the pennant winner. Poor Minnesota. The World Series opens Wednesday in the Red Sox's Fenway Park, as Boston begins the traditional seven-game series against the St. Louis Cardinals, who ran away from the National League. This writer sees the Red Sox winning in six games, which at this point would be an upset.

Black Week for Southwest Conference

By RALPH ROUTON
Star Sports Writer

Last weekend the football teams that were upset during "Black Week" were supposed to come back with methodical victories. Notice the use of the word "supposed," because many squads could not kick the habit of losing to an easy opponent.

Most wondrous of all results came in the SWC, as the pre-season favorites, Arkansas and Texas, were knocked off for the second straight time. Also, the Texas Tech Red Raiders emerged as a possible threat to their first Southwest Conference championship, as the spotters from Lubbock turned the tide on Texas, scoring a fairly decisive 19-13 victory over the Longhorns.

How the Razorbacks could be 0-2 is unheard of, and coupled with the '66 finale, a 21-16 loss to Tech, our Hogs now boast their first three-game losing string in a decade. Conservative Frank Broyles gambled a few times against Tulsa, but the Arkansas offense was unable to come up with those crucial third and fourth down plays. Don't look for a championship year from the 1967 Razorbacks.

Michigan State, Arkansas, Alabama, Ole Miss, Miami (Fla.), and Texas had suffered earlier defeats this year, but Saturday was history repeating itself, as high and mighty Notre Dame fell to the Purdue "Spillermakers" 28-21. The Boilermakers have now beaten the Fighting Irish four of the last six meetings. Also the Ohio State Buckeyes were victimized, and Texas Tech beat Texas. Watch out for the Red Raiders, they could, according to QB John Souvill, go all the way to 19-0. It's quite possible, because Tech moved the ball impressively against the "Horns, and TU had many problems moving the ball after their 13 points were scored in the first twenty minutes.

By the way, the hope Bobcats will be playing host to the Jefferson Avenue Piggies of Texarkana this Thursday at 7:30 p. m., and Coach Gaylord Solomon's local forces will be facing the strongest Jr. High team around Texarkana. The Kattens' Homecoming will bring College Hill of Texarkana to Hammond stadium on October 19.

At the left are Bitsy Blehler of El Dorado, Gayle Cross and Marsha Garner, both of Hope, and Harrington. Riders rolled over the Bisons 26-9 and are favored to beat Arkansas Tech in their next game at Magnolia Saturday Sept. 30 beginning at 7:30 p. m. in Wilkins Stadium.

Two years ago, Phil King, a fullback for the Minnesota Vikings, sat next to me in the locker room at Baltimore and shook his head. It was the opening game of the season, and The Chief, as we called him, said, "I've been in championship games with the Giants, but it's never been as tense as this."

The Vikings had won five straight exhibition games (in fact, they had a streak of 15 exhibition wins in a row). We went into the game feeling that if we won it, we also won the championship. And if we lost, we're not good enough.

That's the danger of opening games. They can ruin your season.

Against the Colts that day, we intercepted Johnny Unitas three times in the first quarter and built a 10-0 lead. But it was a hot day—95 degrees—and we were just out of the cold country of our training camp at Bemidji, Minn. The Colts came on and beat us, 35-16. We were completely defeated.

Instead of the championship season we were confidently building to, we finished 7-7.

The moral of the story: the first game is important, but don't let it throw you. I can remember offhand that the Eagles in 1960 and the Colts in 1964 lost their openers and still went on to win their division titles.

You know, it's kind of tough to play your heart out through five exhibition games. You want to win and you try just as hard. All of a sudden you come up to the first game and the coach tells you, "Boys, now we're playing for real."

The game has to be kept in perspective. During the pre-season stretch just finished, the Giants tried to win. But we also tried to "establish" and work on certain things. We didn't prepare as much for a specific team as we do now. By Saturday night, for the Giants' opening game with the Cardinals, I felt like I'd been living with the Cardinal defensive unit. And really, I don't know them very well.

On Tuesday, I got my game plan. And on Tuesday and Wednesday nights I brought game films of the Cardinals home with me. As I ran them through the projector, I visualized how I'd use my game plan against them. All Wednesday night, it was all because I felt loose by Thursday dawn I had a clear-cut idea of what I was trying to do.

Before an opening game, I used to get wrought up and nervous. I'm kind of uncommunicative anyhow, building up to a game, so that I don't even talk to my wife, Elaine. I also used to be more superstitious than I am now. I remember at Minnesota, when we won, I'd repeat the routine I followed the previous week. We'd go to the same restaurant the same night of the week. But I learned that doesn't always work. Either—fortunately. Now that I'm in New York, if I followed the same pattern and we happened to eat at the Four Seasons on Friday night, and then we won 14 straight games, it would wind up an expensive season. (It would also, I might add, be worth it.)

At the very least, all season-opening games should be like the very first one I played in for the Vikings in 1961. We were a brand new team, facing the Chicago Bears. They had beaten us two weeks before by a big score and pretty well humiliated us. On Monday, Norm Van Brocklin, our coach, told me I won the starting job at quarterback. Remember, I was a rookie. The Bears used innumerable defenses which presented complex problems to a new guy.

Stage Set for First Game of World Series Wednesday at Boston

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's Jose Santiago and St. Louis' Orlando Cepeda may share a dinner table tonight, but when Wednesday comes it'll be like the old westerns.

Fenway Park won't be big enough to hold them both in the first game of the World Series, and one will have to get out—Santiago by way of the showers or Cepeda by way of a strikeout or some such harmless maneuver.

The showdown won't come at high noon—it'll be shortly after 1 p. m.—but when it does occur it'll be a very important one because Santiago and Cepeda are very vital to their teams.

Santiago will be Boston's opening game pitcher while Cepeda is the Cardinals' primary slugger.

They are not unfamiliar to each other, these two. Both are from Puerto Rico, Santiago from Carolina and Cepeda from Guaynabo.

"Orlando? I've pitched against him in winter ball," Santiago said after going through a 30-minute workout Monday. "He's a good friend of mine. Maybe I'll take him out to dinner. But I'll be trying to get him out in the game."

At the same time, Bob Gibson will be trying to get the Red Sox out as the Cardinals' starter.

He was given that job Monday by Manager Red Schoendienst, who also named Dick Hughes and Nelson Briles for the second and third games.

Manager Dick Williams of Boston will counter with 22-game winner Jim Lonborg in the second game and possibly Gary Bell or Lee Stange in the third.

If the Red Sox are to upset the experts and win the series—just as they upset everyone and soared from ninth to first in the American League this year—those pitchers will have to muffle Cepeda's guns.

National League pitchers did very little muffling during the season, and Cepeda is considered a clinch to be named the league's Most Valuable Player.

After battling for the batting title with a .340-plus average much of the year, the 30-year-old first baseman settled down to a .325 mark, socked 25 homers and led the league with 111 RBIs.

Santiago, on the other hand, was an unheralded right-hander until the last two weeks of the season.

Then, suddenly, he won three games in five days—two in relief and one as a starter—and was called on by Manager Williams to pitch the opener of the crucial two-game, season-ending series with Minnesota.

He responded with another victory, and Williams reacted by naming him his series starter.

Over-all this season, the 27-year-old veteran won 12 games and lost four and compiled a 3.72 earned run average.

Gibson, whose right leg was broken by a Roberto Clemente line drive in the middle of the season, recovered sufficiently to record a 13-7 mark with a 2.98 ERA.

The 31-year-old right-hander is the only Series veteran among the Cardinal starters. In St. Louis' 4-3 triumph over the New York Yankees in 1954, Gibson won two games, lost one and set a Series record with 31 strikeouts in 27 innings.

The man Gibson must fear most is Carl Yastrzemski, like Cepeda an over-whelming choice for the MVP award.

In the last two games of the season, the Boston left fielder made it very plain that Fenway Park certainly was not big enough for both him and the Twins, and there never was any question of who was doing the getting out.

In his last six at-bats—two in Saturday's 6-4 victory and four in Sunday's 7-3 triumph—Yaz rapped six hits and drove in six runs, putting the Red Sox into the Series and himself into the role of Triple Crown winner. He batted .326, drove in 121 runs and slugged 44 homers, the same number as Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew.

Yastrzemski and the rest of the Sox' except Santiago, took Monday off to recuperate from their wild celebration Sunday night.

They returned to Fenway for a scouting report meeting and a 90-minute workout today.

The Cardinals flew into Boston Monday night and had a night's sleep before getting their first look at the park today.

The line-ups the two starting pitchers will face will show nothing new.

Boston will have Jerry Adair, recovered from a Sunday spike wound, at second, Dalton Jones at third, Yastrzemski in left, Ken Harrelson in right, George Scott at first, Rico Petrocelli at short, Reggie Smith in center and Russ Gibson catching.

After playing here Wednesday and Thursday, the teams take Friday off before continuing in St. Louis Saturday, Sunday, and if necessary, Monday. If needed, the last two games will be played in Boston next Wednesday and Thursday.

Tigers Lose to Camden Lincoln

By CHARLES JONES
Yerger Sports Writer

The Tigers went down in defeat last Saturday night to the Lincoln High Tigers of Camden by the score of 39-26.

The Yerger team gave its most spectacular performance thus far in this season.

Yergers quarterback David Black had a good night by completing 8 of 14 passes for 162 yards and 4 touchdowns.

Yerger scored early in the first quarter on a 60 yard down from David Black to Spencer Brown making the score 6-0, but Camden scored twice in that same period to map the score 13-6. In the second quarter, Yerger scored on a 15 yard toss to halfback Charles Martin from David Black to tie the score 13-13, but with 5 left in the half, Camden scored again to make the score 19-13 and that was the score stayed during the remainder of the first half.

The third quarter was dominated by Camden in which they scored three touchdowns to map the score 39-13, but in the fourth quarter Yerger played like a new team and from the result of this minute urge, the Tigers scored twice. The first touchdown of the second half came on a 40 yard pass from quarterback Black to Johnny Smith. The I.A.T. was no good. The second and last touchdown came on a 15 yard toss to Charles Martin from David Black and the I.A.T. was good. So the final score was Camden 39, and Yerger 26.

His Boat Great at the Turns

DETROIT (AP) — Leonard Caldwell's boat is great at turns.

Monday night it made one in the Detroit River and pitched him overboard.

While Caldwell bobbed in the river his boat continued to circle, turning tighter and tighter. And then the boat turned on its master and stuck him on the head.

A sailboat came along and rescued Caldwell who was treated for head, side and leg cuts.

Meanwhile, the small outboard-powered boat continued to circle until Coast Guardsmen had tied it.

Integration Into the Class Struggle Poses World Peace Threat

By DEREK M. SCHOEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The integration of the race issue into the international class struggle poses a growing threat to world peace, says a Swedish sociologist-economist.

Gunnar Myrdal told a conference on "The Next 50 Years" today: "There is a race angle to the relation between rich and poor countries, though most of us succeed in remaining unaware of it."

"In the world as a whole, most people are colored and poor, while the minority of people who are well off are mostly white," Myrdal said.

Myrdal is the author of "An American Dilemma." Written in the 1940s, the book is a pioneer study of the Negro in the United States.

Myrdal told the conference, sponsored by the American Institute of Planners and attended by 65 experts on science, the arts and government, that a danger sign is the increasing protest by poor nations against "racism."

In other conference talks, a city planning expert urged creation of government agencies to control land development on a regional basis and a self-styled radical activist said urban slums are America's "colonies."

Carl Feiss of Washington, former Denver city planner and now a private consultant, said agencies patterned after the Tennessee Valley Authority should be created to dictate land use.

"I would blanket the country with such mechanisms," said Feiss. "I would prepare plans within the selected areas, manage them and implement them as the TVA, and I would involve every level of government and private enterprise as has TVA."

He charged that industrial and real estate interests have "grown fat on the land and assumed no responsibility for managing the lives of millions, born and unborn," through air and water pollution and despoilment of open land.

Carl Oglesby, a resident lecturer of Antioch College and former head of the militant Students for a Democratic Society, said urban slums have "all the basic features of the conquest and colonization of 'savage' peoples."

Like colonized peoples, said Oglesby, slum dwellers' labor produces wealth which is spent elsewhere by the owners of urban core tenements and stores who live outside the slums.

He said it is significant this summer's Negro rioting focused more on property than on people.

Computer Says Cards Should Win

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The cold, unblinking eye of the computer gives the St. Louis Cardinals the statistical edge over the upstart Boston Red Sox in battling pitching and man-to-man comparisons at most positions.

The same chilling statistics do not take into account Boston's dramatic surge from ninth to first in one season and the Cardinals' cakewalk to the pennant in a National League that was supposed to be well-balanced.

Except for Carl Yastrzemski in left field and Rico Petrocelli at shortstop, the Cardinals appear to have an edge at every position going into the World Series opening Wednesday at Fenway Park. Third base could be a standoff, depending upon the whim of Dick Williams, the Boston manager who shifts lineups by hunch with a magic touch.

Let's start with the pitching. Usually decides a short series. In the best-of-7 competition, Manager Red Schoendienst already has announced he will use Bob Gibson, Dick Hughes and Nelson Briles in the first three games. All are right-handers.

Steve Carlton, a regular lefty starter, would be available for a fourth game but the Redhead might want to go right back to Gibson, his ace and 1964 Series vice chairman for the coming year. These positions are re-determined annually.

The bullpen crew of Al Jackson, Jack Lamabe, Larry Jast-Patmos, F. L. Brint, C. P. Jones, B. V. Jester, Shover, Springs, DeAnn, James, H. Burke, Jim Faulkner, J. C. Williams will open with Jose Santiago, a Puerto Rican who has alternated between starting and relief throughout his career, and will follow with Jim Lon-Washington, O. C. Moss Rowe, and the 22-game winner who pitched Sunday's pennant clincher.

Gary Bell probably is the best bet for the third game with Lee Stange a possibility. The big man in the Boston bullpen is in charge of John Wyatt who won 10 games and appeared 60 times. Stange and Dan Osinski are the others who figure but Sparky Lyle's sore arm leaves the club without a regular lefty.

Around the infield, the Cardinals have the edge at first base with Orlando Cepeda getting the call over George Scott and Julian Javier over either Jerry Adair or Mike Andrews at second.

Rico Petrocelli of Boston is a standout over Dal Maxvill at shortstop but third is a tight fit between the Cards' Mike Shannon and Boston's Dalton Jones, both good men with the bat. Williams seldom used Joe Foy, the regular third baseman at the start of the year.

Yastrzemski, everybody's best bet for Most Valuable Player honors in the American League, must be ranked over any left fielder although the Cards' Lou Brock combines speed and power, and carried the club in early season.

Curt Flood of the Cards has to be the center fielder over rookie Reggie Smith of the Sox although Flood has been having trouble throwing since a mid-season injury and Smith had a good second half after a slow start.

Roger Maris, both at bat and in the field, has a wide edge in right field over either Ken Harrelson or Jose Tatalabul. Maris' backup men, Bob Tolman and Alex Johnson, rate on a par with Harrelson and Tatalabul.

Catching is another big plus for St. Louis. Tim McCarver, presiding Joe Torre for the role of No. 1 catcher in baseball, has been an inspirational leader all season and hit .295 with 14 homers and 69 runs batted in. None of the Boston catchers can come close.

Russ Gibson, who knocked around the farm system for 10 years, is a good catch-up hit man and Elston Howard has helped mostly by steadying the pitchers with his experience. Filie has not done much at bat.

The oddsmakers who have established the Cards as favorites have weighed all the statistics.

They can't tally the great unknowns: Can the Cards get back in stride after an early clinching? Will the Red Sox momentum carry over into the Series? Or will the nerve-racking tension of those final days take its toll on the tired Red Sox?

Flamenco Is Probably Most Famous

NEW YORK (AP) — "His greatest year? I would have to say the 1966 Arlington Classic. But the Flamenco of 1966, that will go down as his most famous race."

It was Eddie Neley, trainer of millionaire Buckpasser, talking a few hours after owner Ogden Phipps announced the retirement of the popular 4-year-old son of Tom Fool and Busanda.

The colt, famous for his come-from-behind victories, was syndicated for a record $4.8 million last spring. He'll stand at Bull Hancock's Claiborne Farm at Paris, Ky.

In the Arlington Classic, Buckpasser met the best of the year's 3-year-olds and hung up a world record of 1:32 3-5 for one mile.

"Yes, that was his greatest race in my opinion although he had many more," Neley added. "But the race everybody will remember most was the Flamenco."

In that 1 1/2-mile race at Hialeah Park, Buckpasser had taken the lead in the stretch but surrendered it to Abe's Hope. He apparently was a beaten horse, trailing by nearly two lengths with only 70 yards remaining.

Then, with Braulio Baeza using all of his riding ability, Buckpasser lifted himself with one final desperate effort and won by the narrowest of margins.

Diary Tells of Tragedy, Dispair

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — A 16-year-old girl's diary despairingly foretold the fatal and to an incredible two-month struggle to survive a plane crash on a snow-shrouded California mountain last March 11.

The diary was found with the bones of Carla Corbu and her mother, Mrs. Phyllis Olen, near the wrecked plane Sunday by a deer hunter.

Still missing is Alvin F. Olen, a Portland, Ore., hotel owner and Carla's stepfather. The diary reported that he started walking out from the stormy mountain five days after the crash to seek help.

On the 50th day after the crash, April 30, Carla expressed the bite of despair with this note:

"I hope you are happy, search and rescue. You haven't found us yet."

She wrote that the day was her 15th birthday.

The diary's last entry, dated May 4, after entrapment for 55 days, 6,000 feet up on a craggy mountain side, told the ordeal of melting snow: "Today is a bright and drippy, drippy day. We are completely soaked."

There was nothing more to tell or how much longer Carla and her mother survived after the 55th day.

A search team combed the area for the remains of Olen as his eldest son, Alvin Jr., 32, criticized Civil Air Patrol search procedures.

"If the Civil Air Patrol were organized properly, they would have been found," said Olen, who had spent 107 days searching for the plane.

CAP officers were not immediately available for comment.

The three were flying from Portland to San Francisco to visit Alvin Jr., a DC8 copilot for Delta Airlines.

There was no indication what caused the crash of the single-engine craft at the 6,000-foot level on storm-covered Bullychoop Mountain in the Trinity Range 25 miles west of Redding and 200 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Both the mother and daughter made entries on the margin of an Airman's Guide booklet. The woman wrote in script and the girl printed.

The first entry said, "Plane on left side in snowbank. Fuse-lage broken. Door ajar. Windows on right side broke as well as windshield."

An undated note listed the following, three cuts on forehead. Right arm broke, pain with berberae. Crushed ribs on right side.

"Phyllis delirious for one day. Broken left arm. Sore right hand, bruised left leg, cut and broken left ankle. Both feet frosted the first night. Nose bruised."

Death Rate High Among Mexicans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mexican-Americans — at least those from five southwestern states — are dying in Vietnam at a higher rate than other GIs, according to a study done at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The report by UCLA's Mexican-American study project said Monday a study of the Vietnam casualties from five southwestern states showed 19 per cent of those who died had Spanish surnames.

The report said the five states—California, New Mexico, Colorado, Texas and Arizona—had a Mexican-American population equal to 11.5 per cent of their total 1960 census.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

City families are generally a little smaller than suburban families, says The World Almanac. Median family size in the central cities of the nation's standard metropolitan statistical areas, as defined by the U.S. Department of Commerce, was found to be 3.60 persons in March 1966, compared with 3.76 persons in the suburbs.

Fight or Pull Out Says General

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The United States should pull its combat troops out of South Vietnam unless it intends to fight China, Gen. James M. Gavin said Monday night.

"Not only are we destroying the Vietnamese people, we are destroying ourselves by what we are doing out there," the former chief of research and development for the Army told 600 members of the International Relations Council.

"It is high time we turned this country around," Gavin said. "The environment brought about by Vietnam is poisoning our society at home, and our relations abroad."

The Week Did Produce Some Real Oddities

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was that kind of a week... President Johnson took to the golf course for the first time in months and slid his first drive into an adjacent fairway... He got a Mulligan... The President told intimates he planned to take up golf again and abandon alcohol, which means he will play only 18 holes and skip the 19th... The nation's capital is on an exercise kick... Senate Democrats defeated Senate Republicans in a challenge tennis match, 2-1... Only proving in this pre-election year that the Democrats have better lady-like forehands but the Republicans have knobbler knees... And the White House had to deny a report that those costs found in movie star George Hamilton's abandoned $27,000 Rolls-Royce in Kingman, Ariz., belonged to Lynda Bird... George later said they were his.

In Miami, the zoo reported the birth of an aardvark, which shouldn't cause any earth tremors except it was the first of the funny-snouted animals born in captivity in the United States... and the second in the world (the only other was at Frankfurt, Germany, in 1912)... The aardvark, apparently because of his looks, is a night animal and quite timid, refusing to breed behind bars... The same theory, in effect, was expounded by psychologist James Hemming of Britain's official Marriage Guidance Council, who said formal marriage was going out of style; and should be only "a social statement of intent when the partners desire it"... In Philadelphia, a bashful English teacher proposed to his girl through the want ad section... She met him after work with the query: "Honey, what took you so long?"

Modern science: Moscow announced the introduction of color or television but there was just one flaw... No color sets were on sale... The Russians could only make enough for public places... Plumbing leaks, like you have in your bath room, have delayed Uncle Sam's latest shot at the moon... In San Jose, Calif., a crane had to be summoned to lift Betsy the Cow out of a 30 foot well where she tumbled when boards gave way... In Germany when you say, "Go fly a kite" you have to add, "and get a license"... Bonn said it planned to license kits to protect air safety.

Legal Reefs for the Boatman

To be properly equipped, today's motorboat enthusiast needs more than just the motor, the boat, and sunbath lotion.

He also needs liability insurance. For one of the unhappy side effects of the boom in pleasure boating has been a sharp increase in damage claims by the victims of accidents.

Nosy Census May Spark Revival of Know-Nothing Party

Congressman Jackson E. Belts, Ohio Republican, rates a national ovation for his outburst against the Census Bureau's invasion of the privacy of American citizens.

The Census Bureau, he is reported as saying in this morning's newspapers, has no business asking private citizens such questions as:

Do you have your own bathroom or do you share one with others? Does your bathroom have a flush-toilet, a tub, or a shower? Have you been married more than once?

(Next thing you know they'll be asking old bachelors like your editor: If unmarried, Why?) And if you're a woman, how many babies have you had, not counting stillbirths?

These are some of the 67 questions the Census Bureau tried out in a test mailing to a quarter of the households in New Haven, Ct. — and if the questions are made official in the 1970 Census and you refuse to answer any one of them you may be threatened with a 60-day jail sentence or a fine of $100, Congressman Belts points out.

The obvious commentary is that while a private citizen has the constitutional right to stop a search of his home without a warrant the Census Bureau violates the spirit of the law by intruding an outrageous questionnaire in lieu of an armed officer.

The citizen can, of course, retire under the umbrella of the Fifth Amendment, making all his answers read: "I don't know," or, "I don't remember."

This sad state of affairs conceivably could lead to a revival of the American (or Know-Nothing) Party which caught the nation's fancy back in the 1850's. The Know-Nothing boys were an unsavory crowd, straddling the slavery issue and opposing Catholics. But if the name be unsavory the idea of I-don't-know-nothin' may conceivably be the private citizen's last recourse against nosy agents holding the credentials of an unsavory government.

Steel Haulers Vow to Stop All Trucking

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Striking independent steel haulers threw out a plan to settle their violent dispute with the Teamsters Union today and vowed to stop all trucking.

Accompanying the rejection was a fresh surge of shootings, beatings, vandalism and blockades.

A strike leader, William Kusley of Gary, Ind., called a news conference to brand the proposed peace pact "the usual standard Teamsters line of double-talk, lies and contradictions."

"We will stop everything except wheelbarrows and bicycles," he said.

Printing Bids Not Opened

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The secretary of state's office followed the orders of officeholder Kelly Bryant Monday and did not open bids from four firms on legislative printing and stationery needs for the next two years.

Bryant, who is attending the National Secretaries of State convention, gave the order because of what he called "pending litigation."

He was referring to a court suit questioning the legality of the State Printing Specifications Review Committee which was created by the 1967 General Assembly.

Time, Enemy of All Men, Can Be Bitter Foe to Movie Actors

by HAL DOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "Involve yourself in your time—as awful as that time may be," said Melvyn Douglas. "What else is there?"

Time, the enemy of all men, can be a particularly bitter foe of actors, whose fame and fortune are often dependent on their faces.

But at 66 Douglas has turned his age to his artistic advantage.

In the 1930s he was Hollywood's masculine symbol of debonair sophistication. Lately he has been featured in a series of "old man" roles.

His portrayal of an elderly rancher in "Hud" won him an Oscar in 1964. On Oct. 17 he will star on the CBS-TV production of "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night," in which he plays a man placed in a home for the aged by his children.

Does he harbor any inner resentment at being assigned these snow-haired roles?

"No indeed," he responded with crisp realism. "It would be ridiculous for me now to do anything else."

As debonair of spirit as ever, Douglas takes aging as a normal human process and makes no attempt to camouflage it in himself.

Hurricane May Spare Texas Area

By GARY GARRISON
Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Small but violent Hurricane Fern thrashed toward the northeast Mexican coast today with indications that it might spare Texas areas still reeling from the ravages of Beulah.

Storm experts of the Weather Bureau said it appeared the new hurricane would veer more toward the west and strike inland tonight between the Mexican port of Tampico and the mouth of the Soto La Marina River.

The Soto La Marina empties into the Gulf of Mexico about 90 miles north of Tampico, and this would put Fern's center more than 200 miles south from Brownsville.

At 5 a.m. the Weather Bureau placed the powerful center, with winds up to 85 miles per hour, near Latitude 22.8 North and Longitude 95.0 West, or about 200 miles east of Tampico and 250 miles southeast of Brownsville.

Unlike most such tropical storms which usually are born far out in the Atlantic, Fern sprang into life Monday in the Gulf.

Fern churned toward the Tampico area, already threatened by flood waters loosed by Beulah and just now nearing the sea, curled a little northwest and earlier today appeared to be headed for a point about mid-way along the 260 miles of coastline between Brownsville and Tampico.

The Weather Bureau urged immediate hurricane precautions in the threatened area, warning against ties up to six feet where the eye of the hurricane passed.

Welfare Board Favored by Ruling

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell said Monday that the state Welfare Board does not have a statutory duty to direct the state Welfare Commissioner to reinstate employees cleared by the Merit System Council.

The opinion, which was requested by members of the state Welfare Board appointed during the tenure of former Gov. Orval Faubus, also said that the board cannot legally reinstate an employee discharged by the commissioner.

The board was also advised that it can conduct grievance hearings and that it can investigate any "improper or illegal activities" within the department.

Board Chairman Eagle Street of Cave City asked the questions in the opinion.

State Welfare Commissioner Blaylock has said the board spends more time hearing complaints of discharged employees than it does settling general welfare policy and dealing with major welfare problems.

Thieu Firmly in Power in Vietnam

By BARRY KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — His election as president validated, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu seemed firmly in power today. But one young Buddhist nun burned herself to death and militant Buddhist sources threatened 110 more fiery suicides in their anti-government campaign.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky appealed to the Buddhists to stop demonstrating and return to their pagodas. Spokesmen for the militants replied that demonstrations would go on until the government met their demands.

Politically ambitious Buddhist leaders want Thieu, a Roman Catholic, to rescind a charter he signed in July recognizing a moderate sect as South Vietnam's mother Buddhist church.

The report of suicide volunteers came from the An Quang pagoda, headquarters of Thich (Venerable) Tri Quang, the militants' leader.

Tri Quang, in the sixth day of a protest vigil in front of Independence Palace, where Thieu has his office, said he was sorry that the Buddhist nun had killed herself. He said he would have stopped her if he had known of her plans.

But Tri Quang added that if the government does not rescind the charter there was a possibility of more self-immolations.

Eleven Buddhists resorted to self-immolation in a violent campaign Tri Quang led last year to topple the Thieu-Ky military government. Ky, now vice president-elect under Thieu, put down the disturbances with troops.

It was not certain whether the suicide of Le Thi Cuc, 20, in the center of Can Tho, the largest city in the Mekong delta south of Saigon, was related to the Buddhist protests.

Authorities said she set herself afire to protest the Buddhist charter but other sources said the nun's superiors had not given their approval for her action.

Last Thursday and again Saturday, 1,000 monks and nuns marched on the palace to demand that the charter signed in July be thrown out. Another 300 marched last Sunday.

Thieu insists that the charter problem is an internal Buddhist affair that they should solve among themselves.

Prisoner in Guilty Plea

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Clyde Griffin, 18, a Tucker Prison Farm inmate who escaped from the State Hospital here Aug. 23, pleaded guilty Monday in Pulaski Circuit Court to a charge of escaping from the hospital.

Griffin was arrested in a Bastrop, La., cafe five days after his escape.

Circuit Judge William J. Kirby gave Griffin a one-year sentence to run consecutive to a two-year term he is now serving on a grand larceny charge from Washington County.

Thinks Mixed Drinks Fine

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Garland County Prosecutor Walter Wright said Monday he felt that as long as private clubs function "within the framework of applicable laws" they should be legally able to sell mixed drinks.

Wright said that this meant the clubs could operate as long as the drinks were restricted to club members.

"The law should not be different for Garland County in this respect than in other counties in the state," said Wright. Wright made the comments after being asked by several Hot Springs businessmen if private clubs could operate "incorporated or otherwise."

Proposes Halt in All Military Action in An Effort for Peace

AP News Digest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington proposed today a halt in all American military action in Vietnam on a fixed date, to be followed by possibly unlimited war if this fails to bring peace talks.

Symington, a Senate Armed Services Committee member and former Air Force secretary, said any such halt should be accompanied by a Saigon government announcement of its willingness "to negotiate with anybody and offer amnesty to members of the Viet Cong."

Voicing opposition to the cessation of bombing alone, the Missouri Democrat's proposal for a test halt in military action was expected to plunge the Senate into a second round of debate this week over Vietnam policies after Monday's lengthy discussions.

Symington, just back from a trip to Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, the Middle East and Europe, expressed concern about Soviet encroachment into the western Mediterranean. He indicated this as one reason for suggesting a dramatic peace move in Vietnam.

Symington did not rule out any form of warfare in his speech.

Further specifics of his plan were expected to be clarified in Senate debate on the prepared remarks.

Symington said it appears "the political objectives of the United States have now been achieved through the creation, by means of free elections, of the president Saigon government." He added that U.S. military objectives "have never included the invasion of North Vietnam, or the occupation of Hanoi, or the taking over of the government of North Vietnam."

Symington said the United States is "overcommitted and overextended" throughout the world. He said the Soviets are improving their military position in the Middle East. If President Charles de Gaulle of France turns over the Ners el Kebir base to Algeria, the Soviets may gain a foothold in the Mediterranean to turn the southern flank of NATO.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant Republican leader who was an observer at the Vietnam elections, repeated today his opposition to a halt in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam without a responding slowdown in the war by Hanoi.

The President's dissenters and backers fought a round Monday over whether he should halt the bombing and should jerk the South Vietnamese up by the slack of their military pants.

The vocal assailants ended up in the usual stalemate over the issues of whether the United States has any business being in Vietnam, whether the President should de-escalate the war or step it up and whether there was any hope of getting United Nations action on the conflict.

GOPs Want Records Kept Secret

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Republican Party asked for a temporary restraining order Monday in federal District Court in an attempt to keep the First National Bank of Little Rock from releasing the records of a statewide bank account.

The Republicans asked that records not be released until its rights have been adjudicated, either in the state Supreme Court or in the federal courts.

Pros. Atty. Jeff Mobley of Russellville has asked for the records for an investigation he is conducting into allegations that the Republicans bought votes in the 1966 general election.

U.S. Troops Search Out the Enemy

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — American infantrymen searched the scrub landscape of the central highlands today for a fresh North Vietnamese regiment that suddenly appeared in the area where enemy troops have tried to cut South Vietnam across the middle.

About 500 U.S. soldiers, two-thirds of them airlifted reinforcements, hunted elements of North Vietnam's 95B regiment, normally a force of about 2,500 men. The Red troops wore new uniforms and fired late-model weapons, indicating they were either re-equipped or had slipped into the South while U.S. attention was diverted last month to the Communist bombardment of Marine defenses along the demilitarized zone.

As the Americans spread out into the flat, dry highlands, small battles, assaults and new Red shelling were reported in all major war sectors of South Vietnam. But the U.S. Command said there was no significant contact with the enemy.

South Vietnam's Buddhist government clash took a new turn when a 20-year-old Buddhist nun burned herself to death in the first such suicide by fire in the current, politically motivated Buddhist protest movement.

The North Vietnamese force in the highlands seemed to be part of a unit eased into South Vietnam by way of the Ho Chi Minh trail. The trail skirts the demilitarized zone from North Vietnam through neighboring Laos and Cambodia—far to the west of the infiltration routes guarded by the Marines on Con Thien and nearby camps.

The quick American decision to send additional troops to the highlands reflect the U.S. Command's concern about the area, where U.S. air cavalrymen were previously able to drive off Red attempts to run a battle line across the country's mid-section.
